RUDYARD KIPLING

Kipling, along with his wife Carrie and children, John and Elsie, spent Christmas at Beaverbrook in 1911.

Lord Beaverbrook, the Estate's namesake and most famous resident, presented Kipling with a pristine guestbook, asking the poet to write its first entry, which you can read below.

While it may not be Kipling's most esteemed work, his poetic guest book entry captures the warmth and joy that clearly filled Beaverbrook during the Christmas period..

*.... He lights his fire at eventide
And prays as his first fathers prayed
For friends to gather there beside
And that is why I send this tome
Of virgin pages fitly wrought
To hold the names of all who come
Beneath your roof at Cherkley Court
Oh long, long may the record run
And you enjoy until it ends
The Four Best Gifts beneath the Sun,
Love Peace and Health and Honest friends*

Joseph Rudyard Kipling

1865-1936, is buried in Poets' Corner, Westminster Abbey.
